Carter's budget 'lean'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter urged Congress Monday to let him spend more for defense but cut some job programs in a $532 billion budget it is stirring controversy within the president's own party.

Describing his budget as "lean and austere," Carter said he wants to reduce this year's $37.4 billion deficit to $29 billion in 1980. During the presidential campaign, the deficit would fall to $1 billion in 1981.

Liberals within the Democratic party, particularly Rep. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., have criticized proposed cuts in school lunch, jobs and other programs. "The budget asks the poor, the black, the old, the young, the cities and the unemployed to bear an disproportionate share of the ... reductions," Kennedy said Monday.

Predictably, Carter was also under fire from publicans.

Carter's decision to fight inflation with an austere budget that cuts some domestic social programs follows advice from his political pollster, Patrick J. D'Addio, who told the president-elect in 1976 that a good term depended on substantial support from middle-income suburbanites who view federal spending and inflation as major problems.

At the same time, Carter and his chief political lieutenant, H. R. Haldeman, say the anti-inflation cut will help poor people more than they will be harmed by the cuts in social spending.

Carter says his cuts will fall hardest on people who are not in desperate need. For example, he says subsidies for school lunches will be reduced for children of middle-and upper-income families.

He said his budget includes $4.5 billion more for the poor, with increases in programs such as food stamps, energy assistance, housing, education, urban grants, and help for food for underprivileged women and children.

The budget includes $6.5 billion for revenue sharing, for state and local governments, but officials said no decision has been made about continuing the program after 1980.

However, Carter is scaling back the urban policy initiatives he proposed last March. While spending for existing housing subsidies would be kept, spending for new subsidized units than in 1979.

Also, perhaps more importantly, inflation accounts for all but seven-tenths of one percent of the $4.5 billion increase. Reductions in just one other program not counted in that total — a $535 million cut in public service jobs for the unemployed — more than offsets even that 0.7 percent boost.

Mayors, black leaders and labor officials already have warned that the nation's poor cannot afford to sacrifice their share of the budget pie.

In his budget, Carter increased the defense spending $10.8 billion to $122.7 billion, in line with a commitment to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Energy budget cuts are planned because of delays in building up a Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

increase to $7.9 billion, saying the new space shuttle should fly within a year.

He also proposed increasing spending for some health programs to extend health services to 2 million more low-income children and pregnant women. Carter calls this a first step toward a national health insurance program it will propose this year. But he requested no spending in fiscal 1980.

Among other winners in Carter's budget were: foreign economic aid, up 25.4 percent to $6.4 billion; ACTION, the federal volunteer agency under recent criticism from Republicans, up 18 percent to $275 million; senior citizens, up 28 percent to $560 million; and the Corps, up from 36,000 youths to 44,000.

The total $532 billion budget is a 7.7 percent increase from the $493 billion budget in the fiscal year that ends this October.

However, Carter said it "provides for about the same level of real federal activity."

Among cuts in the Carter budget:

—About 160,000 adult public service jobs and 250,000 summer youth jobs will be eliminated. However, the administration will allow tax cuts to encourage businesses to hire young people.

—Passenger train service will be curtailed in many parts of the country.

—Less money will be spent on Indian affairs and construction at national parks and the Fish and Wildlife Service.

Energy budget cuts are planned because of delays in building up a Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

Bill defines fetus homicide

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Despite confusion over whether the bill would affect Utah's abortion law, the Utah House passed a measure Friday making it criminal homicide to kill a fetus.

Supporters said the measure would not affect legal abortions performed by licensed medical personnel. But it could be criminal homicide if a pregnant woman lost a baby as the result of beating, or if a drunken driver caused accident resulting in a miscarriage.

Sponsor of the bill, Rep. C. DeMont

Judd, D-Ogden, said the bill would give a fetus the legal status of a human being. He said he did not believe the bill would conflict with Supreme Court rulings on abortion.

Rep. Gary Brockbank, R-Salt Lake, tried unsuccessfully to amend the language of the bill. He wanted to use the phrase "unborn child" instead of "fetus."

He said there is considerable controversy over when a fetus becomes a human being. The Salt Lake Jewish community had opposed the bill on similar grounds, saying that under Jewish law a fetus does not become a human being until it passes half-way down the birth canal.

In a letter sent to lawmakers, the Congregation Kol Ami said the bill would amount to religious discrimination because it makes a law that discriminates against members of one religion.

Representatives also passed a resolution asking the governor to declare it "Respect for Life Week" to commemorate the anniversary of the U.S. Supreme Court decision six years ago allowing legal abortions.

Utah Right-to-Life President Jan Carroll presented a spray of red roses to both houses of the legislature. In brief remarks, she reminded lawmakers that the Utah Legislature acted quickly following the Supreme Court's 1973 decision by calling for a constitutional amendment prohibiting abortions.

Mrs. Carroll said in an interview after her presentation in the house that Right-to-Life hopes several significant pieces of legislation will be passed during the current session of the legislature.

Singer buried; labeled 'martyr'

By DONNA ROUVIERE
University Staff Writer

"It thrills my soul to be a part of this whole thing. I am very joyful, I'm not sorrowful," declared Vickie Singer as she stood at her husband John's Marion gravesite after his funeral Monday.

Mrs. Singer clutched a blue-and-white striped flag with a large star surrounded by 13 smaller ones in the corner. "This is the ensign of the kingdom of God," she said. "John sewed it with his own hands. He loved it." The flag's design, she said, came from one used by Brigham Young and draped on his coffin.

"I will fly it every Jan. 18 (the anniversary of Singer's death), on Joseph Smith's birthday and on the restoration of the priesthood," she said.

The flag had lain draped over Singer's casket during the funeral at Larkin Mortuary in Salt Lake City. An overflow crowd of 350 attended the hour-long service prior to the grave dedication in the cemetery across the road from Singer's farm.

Singer's brother Harald delivered an impassioned eulogy for the 48-year-old excommunicated Mormon, and his oldest daughter Heidi sang a solo, "Redeemer of Israel." Following the service, Mrs. Singer and her polygamist second wife Shirley Black exited hand-in-hand.

In the eulogy, Harald said John was "felled by an assassin's bullet. My brother, in my opinion, was murdered." The statement brought a murmur of "Amen" from the congregation.

Relating a visit to the governor in which he pled with him to "ignore" John's violation of the law, Harald said he warned the governor "if you go after him again, you will create a martyr."

"My brother would never under any circumstances fire the first shot," he said. "I discussed this with him." John had told him, he said, that God had given them special promises. "If we become the aggressor, these promises are null and void."

Using quotes from Mormon Prophet Joseph Smith and the Doctrine and Covenants Sec. 98, Harald said the polygamist was not a law breaker. "John never in his life rebelled against the law God revealed," he said. "Here the Lord has given us the keys of our relationship to the laws of the land. If the law becomes not just in the eyes of the Lord, what must your reaction be?"

Harald compared his brother's death to that of Joseph Smith, "who met a like-wise fate at the hands of the civil authorities."

"As early as April 1978, he knew the final outcome of his death, almost to the day," said Harald. "When he and Shirley were going to get married, she said, 'Why can't we wait six months?' He said, 'It will be too late.' In six months and one day, he was dead."

Harald condemned threats made against law enforcement agencies following the shooting. "John never under any circumstances would have condoned the expression of hatred against the civil authorities of this state," he said.

Referring to the land the Singers lived on but did not have clear title to, Harald said John had "redeemed it with his blood."

He added that anyone who tried to question the Singer family's right to the land would have the curse of the slayers of Joseph Smith on his head.

At the graveside service, held in bitterly cold weather in the Marion cemetery, Harald prayed for the grave's protection against anyone who would try to molest it, saying they would be cursed if they disturbed it.

Officer Tim Meier testified that when he arrived at the scene he found Crane waiting for them and Deardreiff dead in the bedroom. A shotgun was lying on the couch, and the apartment smelled of cigarette smoke, he said.

Crane's other roommate, Richard Titus, testified that, "They didn't get along, but it didn't come to blows. They argued a lot."

Titus was asleep at the time of the shooting in another bedroom, but woke up when the shot was fired.

"The thought came that he (Crane) had shot Bruce. It was so bizarre I didn't even consider it," he continued.

Crane bound over in student murder

By RICHARD BURGSTROM
University Staff Writer

A Provo judge ruled Monday that there was "sufficient cause" to bind over former BYU student Kelvin J. Crane, 25, in the shotgun murder of a BYU student.

Judge J. Gordon Knudsen of the Eighth Circuit Court ordered a preliminary hearing that Crane be held in jail until his trial Feb. 2 for second degree murder in Fourth District Court, or released on bail.

Crane is accused of murdering his roommate, BYU sociology major Jon Deardreiff, 23. Deardreiff was shot twice with a shotgun at approximately 1 a.m. on Jan. 11. He was apparently asleep in his bed. Both men lived at 561 E. 400 North. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

"We plan to plead not guilty by reason of insanity," Ivan E. Lawrence, Crane's defense attorney, said. "He has a documented history of mental illness for more than ten years."

In an appearance after the hearing, Lawrence said that trial judge will probably appoint doctors to judge if Crane is sane or not.

In an attempt to link Crane to the killing, Michael Esplin, deputy district attorney, called four witnesses: the Provo policeman first on the scene, the Utah State Medical Examiner, Crane's roommates and BYU detective involved in the case.

Crane, dressed in a black T-shirt and defense jeans, sat quietly at the defense table with his arms folded while listening to the witnesses.

Officer Tim Meier testified that when he arrived at the scene he found Crane waiting for them and Deardreiff dead in the bedroom. A shotgun was lying on the couch, and the apartment smelled of cigarette smoke, he said.

Crane's other roommate, Richard Titus, testified that, "They didn't get along, but it didn't come to blows. They argued a lot."

Titus was asleep at the time of the shooting in another bedroom, but woke up when the shot was fired.

"The thought came that he (Crane) had shot Bruce. It was so bizarre I didn't even consider it," he continued.

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran's military chief, in an unprecedented radio appeal, called on his troops Monday to "overcome their sentiments" for Moslem religious leaders and defend the government left behind by the shah.

Gen. Abbas Charabaghi, military chief of staff, made his broadcast speech after telling reporters he 400,000-man force had firmly behind the "legal and constitutional" Bakhtiar government in the face of the challenge by the anti-shah religious leader Ayatullah Khomeini.

Germans see 'Holocaust'

BONN, West Germany (AP) — West Germans on Monday saw the first part of "Holocaust," the American-produced television series about Nazi atrocities, as police guarded TV transmitters against possible sabotage.

An initial analysis of some 500 telephone calls received at the Cologne station during the first-hour segment gave this picture:

"We want to forget, we don't want to be reminded." Many callers claimed the program gave a one-sided picture of the Germans.

PLO mastermind killed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A booby-trapped automobile packed with explosives blew up on a Beirut street Monday, ripping a passing station wagon to shreds and killing eight persons, including a man identified as the quoted mastermind of the 1972 Munich Olympics massacre, officials said.

The explosion killed four Palestinian bodyguards in the station wagon with him. Shrapnel and flying glass from the blast killed three Lebanese pedestrians and wounded 16 others.

Book competition open to Y students

The second Book Collection Competition is now open to BYU students.

The contest is open to anyone who has been enrolled at BYU as a student any time during the 1978-79 academic year, according to Gene Wunderlich, vice president of Friends of the BYU Library.

Students entering the competition must have a collection centered on a small field of interest. The collection must be arranged in the form of a bibliography complying with the standard bibliographic procedure, Wunderlich said. Students must own the items in the collection.

"The entries are not judged by the standard of rarity," Wunderlich said, "but on the basis of how representative the material is for the subject of the entry."

According to Wunderlich, paperbacks are acceptable and the entries do not have to be in English. A collection must not contain less than 10 or more than 50 items.

Four prizes of $100 and other special prizes are being offered. Prizes for the two best collections in both graduate and undergraduate categories will be awarded. Wunderlich said. The contest closes March 15.

"The entries are not judged by the standard of rarity," Wunderlich said, "but on the basis of

Mobile home destroyed by fire

Provo City firefighters remove a smoldering mattress from a mobile home belonging to Gary Grossbeck, 210 W. 1500 South, No. 35, which was destroyed by fire Monday. Battalion Chief Doug Nutall of the Provo Fire Department said the home was totally destroyed, resulting in loss of approximately $10,000. Two men, Grossbeck and Charles Daniels, were in the home at the time of the fire. Both men were admitted to Utah Valley Hospital for smoke inhalation and are listed in satisfactory condition. Nutall said smoking in the bedroom was the probable cause of the fire.

library science program given $3,000 award

A scholarship grant of $1,000 has been received by the School of Library and Information Sciences from the H.W. Kent Foundation, according to M.P. Merchant, director of the school.

Merchant said the grant will be given to students entering the Master of Library Science Degree Program summer term or fall semester of 1979.

"We are very pleased in this grant because it allows us to offer help to high quality and worthy students who would like to enter the library and information session," Merchant said.

Students focus on information transfer as a major concern rather than on books or media, Merchant said. "Some of our graduates are taking jobs outside the traditional library setting. We have one graduate who is the information specialist for a planning office. He has no library collection. Rather, he locates needed information from whatever source it might be available."

Students enter library science from many academic undergraduate and graduate programs, Merchant said.

Students interested in learning more about the program and scholarship are encouraged to see Merchant at 5042 HBLL or call Ext. 2976 for an appointment.

Club Week presents displays

To familiarize students with the organizations on campus, Club Week began Monday and will run through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., in the ELWC Reception Center.

The semi-annual event is held so students can get acquainted with the various clubs offered by the ASBYU Organizations Office, a spokesman for the office said.

There will be 31 clubs represented during Club Week, each with a booth displaying the type of activities offered. Information for joining the different clubs will also be available, according to Susan Hollingsworth, executive assistant of the office.

There are nearly 200 clubs on campus, but all the clubs will not be represented with booths. Students who are interested in other clubs on campus are encouraged to watch for club notes in The Daily Universe for club meeting times and information.

Scovil returns to Y

Offensive coach happy to be back

Head Football coach LaVell Edwards has announced the return of offensive coordinator Doug Scovil to the BYU coaching staff.

The announcement of Scovil fills the opening created when Wally English left the Cougars for a position on the football staff at the University of Pittsburgh. Scovil was the master mind behind BYU's passing offense during the 1976-77 seasons when the Cougars season and had four successful seasons as head coach at the school.

Doug Scovil is returning to the BYU football program as the offensive coordinator. He coached for the Chicago Bears of the NFL during the 1978 season.

Scovil moved to the professional ranks in 1970 when he became backfield coach with the San Francisco 49ers. The 49ers won three division titles while Scovil was with the team.

Scovil stayed with San Francisco for six seasons before coming to BYU in 1976. While at BYU Scovil tutored the Cougars' first Heisman trophy candidate, Gifford Nielsen. After coaching at BYU for two years Scovil decided to return to the professional ranks. "I wanted to improve my retirement benefits," he said.

When asked about Marc Wilson, the BYU quarterback he brought to national attention after Nielsen suffered a knee injury, Scovil said, "He will be my number one priority. There is no reason he can't return to his form of 1977."

Interested students are invited to the Smith Fieldhouse free play area. More information may be obtained by calling Lindsey at ext. 3048.

aerial game was the top ranked offense in the nation. "We're really happy that Doug could come back," said Edwards. "His record speaks for itself."

Edwards said the Cougars' offensive coordinator would be on the job today, helping with the winter recess, and would be available when Scovil returns to BYU after spending one year with the Chicago Bears of the National Football League.

"I'm glad to be back, and I'm ready to go to work," said Scovil.

Scovil said the Chicago Bears didn't play the type of football he thought they would so he returned to BYU. "I've given my decision to return to BYU a lot of thought," he said. "It's (BYU) where I want to be. I am very happy with the reception I have received," he said.

Scovil has 25 years of coaching experience, beginning with a high school coaching job and progressing to the NFL. He was mentor of Sam Heath, High School State champion in 1965, and guided his team to the state championship. From 1958-59 Scovil was head coach at the College of San Mateo for five years, winning the league title three times.

Scovil took a job as assistant coach at the United States Naval Academy in 1963 and stayed with the Midshipmen until 1966. He was quarterback coach at Navy when Roger Staubach won the Heisman Trophy.

One of the great advantages of science fiction is its ability to take a concept or problem and extrapolate it into a possible future. This gives people an opportunity to determine if the results of their actions are worth the possible hazards.

One of those new ideas is the possibility of using a combination of drugs and hypnosis to "condition" an individual to do bad things he normally wouldn't do.

There have been stories about this concept before. But some experts assure us that hypnosis alone cannot cause a person to act contrary to his true nature.

But with the use of the many new drugs available that influence the mind, is it now possible to overcome the natural tendencies of a person? Could someone who has a strong instinctive dislike for violence be conditioned to become an assassin?

That's the theme of All My Sins Remembered, recently released by Avon Books in paperback.

Halderman has become a respected author who does not write in a social setting.

The Forever War deals with not just the concept of interstellar flight on war, but also that influence on the individual as war becomes more remote from the average life of society.

Mindbridge treated the discovery of telepathic ability and its influence on man's ability to face the new and unknown.

All My Sins Remembered gives the reader a chance to discover the possibilities of the new conditioning techniques available to the government and private industry on the individual.

McGavin is an Anglo-Buddhist with a strong moral sense about killing. So a secret agency of an interstellar government makes him a professional killer. What happens to a man with a McGavin is trained and conditioned to deal with difficulties anywhere in the galaxy that might disturb the peace between worlds. He is expected to kill without hesitation without hesitation or moral scruples.

The reader is treated to a variety of cultures and situations through McGavin, but the real meat of the novel is what happens to the protagonist at times of time he kills and kills when his real nature is greatly opposed to killing.

Elder McConkie, Holland

Doctrine and Covenants to be symposium topic

Elder Bruce R. McConkie of the Council of the Twelve and Jeffrey R. Holland, his counselor in the Council of Education, are keynote speakers for the seventh annual Sidney B. Sperry Symposium of the scriptures.

The Symposium is entered around "Understanding the Doctrine and Covenants," and will be held Jan. 27 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. in 15 MCKB, the JSB auditorium, and 179 SB.

Sperry, a former teacher of religion at BYU, died at the time of his death for a symposium of the symposium of the Symposium Chair man Donald G. Smith said the symposium is an in-depth study of the standard works designed primarily for BYU religion teachers, well as seminary and institute teachers. From However, since this year's adult Sunday School lessons are on the Doctrine and Covenants, anyone interested free of charge.

Robert J. Matthews, chairman of the ancient scriptures department, will open the Symposium at 8 a.m. in the auditorium with a discussion of Joseph Smith's translation of the Bible and of the Doctrine and Covenants.

Matthews will be followed at 9 a.m. by Elder McConkie elaborating on verse five of Doctrine and Covenants chapter 10.

From 10 a.m. to noon other topics include the law of consecration, applications of the Doctrine and Covenants, and latter-day prophets will be covered. Robert Woodford, institute instructor at the University of Utah, will discuss important changes made in the various editions of the Doctrine and Covenants.

At 1 p.m., Holland will speak on the preface to the Doctrine and Covenants. Afterward, Lyndon Cook, instructor of religion, will discuss the evidential nature of the high council and conference meetings of the church from 1830-33 as they relate to the book.

Other afternoon speakers include Larry Porter, chairman of the seminary and institute faculty, who will speak on the historical background of the 15 Harmony revelations; and Kenneth Godfrey, area administrator for the seminaries and institutes into the off-year.

Matthews says, "Some interesting ideas on marriage, the family, and polygamy."

The symposium will close at 5 p.m. in all three rooms with a discussion of either the doctrine and covenants from the book, or the word of wisdom.

A printed compilation of the symposium will be available spring term for approximately $3.50.

At the nursery at St. John Medical Center, they're trying hard to keep up with the Joneses.

Jim Jones' wife, Pam, gave birth to a baby boy at 4:26 p.m. They named him Jeremy Lynn.

The following day at 4:25 p.m., Tim Jones' wife, Jan, gave birth to a baby boy. They named him Jeremy Tim.

The Joneses hadn't known each other until they met at the hospital.

And when they did, they discovered that Pam and Jim had just moved into a rental home vacated by Jan and Tim.

"Almost impossible to believe," said Pam.

READ THESE LINES. THEY REALLY SAY "CAREER OPPORTUNITY"

If you can easily read the above lines, you may have the kind of language talent that the National Security Agency needs.

Opportunities now exist for candidates skilled in the languages shown, plus certain other unusual foreign languages as well. Those selected will be able to make valuable contributions in the production of national defense intelligence.

The National Security Agency offers a variety of challenging assignments for language majors ... translation, transcription, area research projects, to name a few. Newly-hired linguists receive advanced training in their primary languages and can plan on many years of continued professional growth.

Intellectual challenge is part of NSA's language, too. Attractive surroundings in our suburban Maryland headquarters. Salaries start at GS-7 level for BA degree graduates, plus all the usual benefits of Federal employment.

U.S. citizenship is required.
Schedule an NSA interview through your Placement Office.

New organ acquired for LDS anniversary

A new $300,000 pipe organ will be installed in the Assembly Hall on Temple Square in Salt Lake City, the First Presidency of the LDS Church has announced.

The new organ, a three-manual, mechanical-action instrument, is to be built by Robert Sipe of Dallas, Texas, for the 150th anniversary of the church in 1980.

The 65-rank, 49-stop instrument will replace the electro-pneumatic Kimball installed in 1913.

Construction and installation of the instrument are being funded entirely by private contributions.

"This instrument will significantly broaden the range of things that can successfully be performed," said John Longhurst, Tabernacle organist.

The instrument's mechanical action offers direct linkage from keyboard to pipe. It will also have division of pipes placed to the organist's back to project more intimately into the hall.

A ready friend

Health Center does job well

By LON WILCOX
University Staff Writer

The student who is afflicted by the Russian flu or is depressed because aches and pains keep him up at night, has a ready friend at the McDonald Student Health Center.

The health center came under the direction of Dr. Cloyd C. Hofheins in 1963.

"We didn't have much here then," he said. "There was no staff to speak of. The nurses had just left, and there was just a part-time physician who came up to run a clinic on a periodic basis."

Since that time, Hofheins said, the health center has evolved into a multi-service area designed to create a place that will meet most of the medical needs of the student body.

Several times since the health center was started, plans have been made to expand its space and facilities. At various times it was thought that a tower could be added at either end of the building or a third floor constructed. Both plans were abandoned as financially and structurally untenable, said Glen C. Roundy, assistant director.

Present facilities include a general clinic staffed by general and nurse practitioners who have been trained in the college health field.

There are also specialists who conduct regular clinics, Roundy said.
